Army in Atlanta ★ 3

WELCOME TO THE ARMY IN ATLANTA

Welcome to our Army community in Atlanta. Both Fort McPherson and Fort Gillem are small in area, but they are important to our country's defense because of the many headquarters and military activities located here.

Fort McPherson, steeped in tradition and proud of its appearance and history, is a blend of the old and new. It is home to the Southeast Region headquarters of the Installation Management Agency, U.S. Army Forces Command, U.S. Army Reserve Command, Third U.S. Army and other important activities.

Fort McPherson's nearest Army neighbor and sub-installation is Fort Gillem, located in Forest Park. Fort Gillem is an essential industrial, logistical support base, housing numerous Army, DoD and other government agencies. Those agencies include First U.S. Army, the U.S. Army and Air Force Exchange Distribution Region, the Military Entrance Processing Station and the U.S. Army Second Recruiting Brigade. Fort Gillem also hosts the only crime lab in the U.S. Army.

Fort McPherson and Fort Gillem share common services and morale support activities. This guidebook will provide you with a better idea of the services available, and the official telephone directory will help you with your day-to-day telephone calls and coordination.

WELCOME TO THE ARMY IN ATLANTA

Atlanta is a thriving metropolis with a population nearing five million people. The city offers traditional southern hospitality, a favorable climate, excellent transportation, cultural activities, educational facilities, entertainment and professional athletic events.

Whether you have already arrived or have recently received orders to report here, the information in this publication is designed to help you get settled and learn about our on-post services and off-post opportunities.

Fort McPherson and Fort Gillem serve and support a number of “internal” audiences: Active duty and reserve component Soldiers, sailors, airmen and Marines, DoD civilian employees, military retirees from all services and family members of each of these groups.

Additionally, both installations serve, support and grow with “external” audiences: Main Street USA communities outside the boundaries of these posts. The civilian communities are partners with the Army in Atlanta in a world neighborhood environment, working, playing and striving together to form strong bonds for growth today and tomorrow.

The Atlanta Business Chronicle named the U.S. Army Garrison, located at Fort McPherson, Atlanta’s seventh largest employer. Fort Gillem is Clayton County’s third largest employer, according to a Clayton County Chamber of Commerce survey.

About 3,500 service personnel come to Fort McPherson and Fort Gillem annually and are considered “new arrivals.” In addition, from 4,500 to 5,000 local, state and international guests take tours of or book events at Fort McPherson and Fort Gillem each year.

In 2002, there were 2,267 active duty Soldiers and 4,952 civilian employees at both posts, with a total active duty and civilian employee payroll of $512,220,825.

With only 102 family quarters and 272 single Soldier billets at Fort McPherson and 10 family quarters at Fort Gillem, active duty military and DA civilian employees live predominantly in surrounding Clayton, Fayette, Gwinnett, Henry and DeKalb counties.

An important audience is the 131,000-plus Fort McPherson-supported retirees of all services and their family members in 66 Georgia counties. They live predominantly in Clayton, Cobb, Atlanta city, Fulton, DeKalb, Fayette and Gwinnett Counties, but also throughout Georgia and in Tennessee and Alabama.

Mission

The mission of the U.S. Army Garrison at Fort McPherson, Fort Gillem and Lake Allatoona is to support and execute soldier readiness and well being by providing efficient and effective installation management programs, a quality community and value-added services to our active, reserve, national guard and joint service forces; retired military; civilians and family members.

Vision

The U.S. Army’s vision is to become a premier installation that provides proactive and comprehensive customer service and support to our military community through leadership, management, innovation and technology.

Mission-Essential Task List

- ★ Achieve First choice Quality of Life activities, services and wellness programs for all customers.
- ★ Furnish sound, state-of-the-art infrastructure, facilities, logistical support and environmental compliance.
- ★ Accomplish synchronized and coordinated installation operations.
- ★ Provide a physically safe and secure environment.
- ★ Offer sound financial advice, prudent funds management and useful organizational management information.
- ★ Reach total customer satisfaction, every day, in every information technology service.
- ★ Attain efficient, effective and quality personnel services.

Arrival Survival

Fort McPherson and Fort Gillem are located on the south side of the Atlanta metropolitan area.

To get to Fort McPherson from Interstate 75, take Georgia 166 (Langford Parkway) west to the “Fort McPherson” exit. Go straight through the traffic light, past the MARTA (Metropolitan Atlanta Rapid Transit Authority) station and directly onto the post.

Fort Gillem is easiest to reach from I-675 when coming from the east and from Jonesboro Road when coming from the west. From Fort McPherson, Fort Gillem is about a 20-minute drive. To get to Fort Gillem from Fort McPherson, take the Langford Parkway east to I-75 south, take I-285 east to I-675, exit at Anvil Block Road. Go right to Fort Gillem.

Fort McPherson is easily accessible from throughout the Atlanta metro area via the MARTA public transportation system. The MARTA station just off the post is the "Lakewood/Fort McPherson" stop. Because there is a MARTA station at Atlanta's Hartsfield Airport, transportation between the airport and Fort McPherson is quick and easy.

All Soldiers not assigned to Headquarters Command (HQ CMD), U.S. Army Garrison, should report during duty hours to their unit. HQ CMD support Soldiers assigned to the garrison, U.S. Army Reserve Command, U.S. Army Forces Command and First U.S. Army. These Soldiers will report to the battalion, located at Building 478 at Fort McPherson, during duty hours. The telephone numbers for HQ CMD are 404-464-3818 and 404-464-3040.

If arrival is after normal duty hours or on a weekend or holiday, Soldiers may sign in with the staff duty officer, Building 65, Fort McPherson, telephone numbers 404-464-2980 and 404-464-3602. The Personnel Administrative Center (PAC) or the staff of the new unit of assignment will provide all newly assigned Soldiers with other inprocessing requirements.

A Newcomers' Orientation for all newly assigned personnel and their family members is conducted the first Friday of each month. For more information on Newcomers' Orientations, call Army Community Services at 404-464-2498.

One Stop Processing

Soldiers assigned to either Fort McPherson or Fort Gillem have the benefit of a "one stop processing center," whether they're in or out-processing. Ten separate inprocessing and 16 separate outprocessing sites on two installations have been reduced to four sites located near Building 181 at Fort McPherson. This centralizes in/out processing, combining transportation, household goods shipment, billeting, vehicle registration, ID cards and DEERS, finance and medical records.

Normal duty hours are Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday from 7:30 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. and Wednesday from 7:30 until 11:30 a.m. For more information, call 404-464-2240.

Duty Hours

Duty hours for both Fort McPherson and Fort Gillem are from 7:30 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Soldiers and local youths combine often through the several community relations and mentoring programs offered on both installations.

OUR NEIGHBORS, OUR PARTNERS

Atlanta was established in 1837 when a New Hampshire engineer broke ground for the southwestern terminal of the Western and Atlantic Railroad. The city has had several names throughout its history. It was first named Terminus and later renamed Marthasville after the daughter of the governor. It was changed to Atlanta in 1847 because Marthasville was too long to write on freight orders.

The city grew and prospered through the years, but was virtually destroyed by the Civil War. After the war, the city adopted the legendary phoenix of Egyptian myth as a symbol of Atlanta because much like the phoenix, Atlanta rose from the ashes to rebuild.

When the 1867 Reconstruction Act created the Third Military District, Atlanta was chosen as the command center for Georgia, Florida and Alabama.

The presence of federal troops was a boost to the economy. The Army constructed McPherson Barracks with local materials and purchased food and supplies from Atlanta entrepreneurs. In 1868, it became the capital of the state, taking the destination from Milledgeville, where the original governor's mansion still stands.

Post-war industries were located near the three major railroads that led to the center of town. Mills produced materials needed for the rebuilding of the city and food for residents.

OUR NEIGHBORS, OUR PARTNERS

By the 1890s, factories dotted Atlanta but the city was still not a national industrial power. The drive to modernize Atlanta began in the early 1900s when the automobile made it mark.

There were more than 5,000 automobiles registered in Fulton County by 1916. Fifteen years later, that number had increased tenfold. This reinforced Atlanta's development pattern of downtown office buildings coupled with suburban residence.

This sequence of events, along with other areas of growth, was the start of what is now known as the transportation capital of the South.

Atlanta has made its mark as a transportation center from its beginning as a railroad terminal to its present state as a hub for world air traffic.

At an altitude of 1,050 feet above sea level, Atlanta enjoys a mild year-round climate. With an annual mean temperature of 60.8 degrees F, the city enjoys cool summer evenings and moderate winters. Summers are only slightly warmer than those of Chicago and New York and snow falls only occasionally.

Over 2.5 million people reside in the seven-county area that makes up metro Atlanta. Besides being one of the largest state capitals, Atlanta is a regional center for the United States Government and has large number of military installations. Dobbins Air Force Base, Fort Gillem, Fort McPherson, the Atlanta Naval Air Station and the 6th District Headquarters of the U.S. Marine Corps are located in or close to Atlanta.

Atlanta has 38 senior colleges and universities, 23 junior colleges and six special purpose institutions of higher learning. Graduate studies are available at 116 public and 13 private universities. Major colleges include: Agnes Scott College, Atlanta University, Emory University, Georgia Institute of Technology, Georgia State University, Kennesaw College, Clayton State College, Oglethorpe University and Mercer University (Atlanta Campus).

The Atlanta University Center is the largest cluster of predominantly black higher education institutions in the country. During its early years, the university concentrated on primary and secondary education, preparing students to take advantage of college and university work. The center today includes four undergraduate liberal arts colleges: Morris Brown, Morehouse, Clark and Spelman. Also included are four professional schools, six schools in the Interdenominational Theological Center and the Morehouse School of Medicine.

Several Equal Opportunity programs are presented each year, including last year's march in honor of Martin Luther King Jr. Day.

HOUSING

Part of the Directorate of Public Works, the Housing Division is responsible for on-post family quarters, bachelor and transient facilities and an off-post housing referral service. Many of the quarters at Fort McPherson are listed on the National Register of Historic Places. There are 112 on-post quarters between Fort McPherson and Fort Gillem.

At Fort McPherson there are 34 sets of general- and senior-officer quarters and 45 sets of field- and company-grade officer quarters. Senior enlisted personnel (E-9) are assigned to field- and company-grade quarters. There are 23 sets of enlisted personnel (E-1 through E-8) quarters with two to three bedrooms. Some quarters are single-family homes; most are duplexes built in townhouse style. The average waiting time for housing is one to four months for both Fort McPherson and Fort Gillem.

Quarters on Staff Row at Fort McPherson and at Fort Gillem have garages. The quarters are duplexes built in townhouse style. All quarters are equipped with a stove, refrigerator, dishwasher, garbage disposal, mini-blinds and central heat and air. Quarters on Staff Row have the same amenities, except they are equipped with double ovens and cook tops. Quarters have hardwood floors and there is one storage shed per building. The average three-bedroom, two-bath house size is from 1,214 to 1,850 square feet.

HOUSING

Two-bedroom, one-bath quarters are single level with 1,104 square feet of space. Staff Row quarters range from 3,300 to more than 7,000 square feet of space. All quarters have basements. There are 10 sets of field- and company-grade quarters located at Fort Gillem.

For more information on family housing on post, call 404-464-1048.

The Fort McPherson and Fort Gillem lodging facilities are provided for servicemembers, DoD civilian employees and the families of each. Reservations are confirmed for personnel traveling in temporary duty (TDY) or permanent change of station (PCS) status. All other travelers will receive lodging on a space-available basis 24 hours in advance. Persons traveling to Fort McPherson or Fort Gillem in TDY or PCS status must contact the Lodging Office before seeking off-post accommodations.

There are 70 guest rooms at Fort McPherson (eight in the distinguished visitors quarters, 12 family apartments and 50 visiting officer and enlisted quarters) and eight guest rooms at Fort Gillem (one in the distinguished visitors quarters and seven in the visiting officer quarters). The visiting officer quarters at Fort Gillem include kitchenettes.

Each guest room is equipped with a private bath, comfortable furniture, a micro-refrigerator, a color TV with remote and cable access and a radio/alarm clock.

Pets are not allowed in lodging facilities. The lodging staff can help travelers locate local boarding facilities.

The lodging office and reservation desk is located in Building 22 at Fort McPherson. Hours of operation are from 6 a.m. until 11:30 p.m., seven days a week. The office is open from 6 a.m. until 6 p.m. on holidays, except for Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Year's Day, when the office is closed. For pricing and more information, call 404-464-2253 or 404-464-3833.

The mission of the Community Home Finding, Relocation and Referral Services (CHRRS) office is to provide assistance to military personnel, DoD civilian employees and military retirees in locating suitable off-post housing on a non-discriminatory basis in regard to race, color, sex, religion or national origin.

The CHRRS staff is trained and available for personal briefings pertaining to off post living, which include rentals, houses for sale, apartments and management listings. The staff has handouts on renting or selling individual homes, sample lease agreements and home buying guides.

The CHRRS staff also can provide newcomers with a welcome package containing general information on the installation and surrounding communities. For more information on this service, call 404-464-3165.

Bona fide bachelor Soldiers in grades E-6 and below assigned to the installation must reside in the barracks complex. For more information, call 404-464-1837.

Yard of the Month awards are given on both Fort McPherson and Fort Gillem throughout the summer.

HEALTH CARE

The Lawrence Joel U.S. Army Health Clinic, Building 125, opened as a new facility at Fort McPherson in 1998. The staff of this facility provides a wide range of health care services to a large patient population.

For the clinic information line and telephone directory, call 404-464-0312.

Open Monday through Friday, patients may enter the building beginning at 7 a.m. Active duty sick call is from 7:15 until 8:15 a.m. No appointment is necessary. Active duty walk-ins are seen after sick call. Urgent complaints are seen as soon as possible. Patients with non-urgent problems should schedule a routine appointment by calling the appointment desk at 404-464-2778.

Appointments are scheduled based on the patient's assigned Primary Care Manager (PCM), but to prevent long waits during sick call, active duty patients are seen by the next available provider when an assigned provider has a patient backlog.

For more information, visit the clinic Web site at www.mcpherson.army.mil/clinic/.

The clinic does not have an emergency room or ambulance service. During normal duty hours, patients with serious medical emergencies are provided the care necessary to allow them to be moved safely to the closest civilian hospital emergency room by civilian ambulance. Outside normal duty hours, patients must get emergency care directly from a civilian hospital emergency room.

HEALTH CARE

In most cases, the clinic pays for care from civilian hospital emergency rooms for active duty Soldiers. Soldiers who get emergency medical care from civilian emergency rooms should report the visit the next workday to the clinic's appointments line at 404-464-2778. Since some types of medical care and services are not authorized at government expense, active duty Soldiers should try to resolve any questions in advance with information from the Health Benefits Advisor at 404-464-0288.

Partial reimbursement for emergency care for most retirees and family members under age 65 is available from TRICARE. TRICARE is the health care system used at Fort McPherson and Fort Gillem. For an explanation of TRICARE services and benefits, visit the Managed Care Office, located in Building 162, call the Managed Care Office staff at 404-464-0286 or 404-464-0292, or visit the Atlanta TRICARE Service Center, also located in Building 162. Hours are from 8 a.m. until 6 p.m. Monday through Friday. Customers also can reach the center by calling 1-800-444-5445, or can visit the TRICARE Web site at www.tricare.osd.mil/.

Patient Representative

The Lawrence Joel U.S. Army Health Clinic has a full-time Patient Representative who can help ease difficulties accessing the medical care system, explain policies, find other sources of help and otherwise provide assistance to patients. For more information, call 404-464-0401.

Routine Care

Active duty Soldiers have first priority in the military health care system, and the Lawrence Joel U.S. Army Health Clinic provides a full range of family medical care, including pediatrics and gynecology, to active duty Soldiers and their family members.

After active duty sick call, Primary Care Managers see active duty Soldiers and family members with scheduled appointments. Both same-day and advance appointments may be scheduled by calling 404-464-2778.

The clinic provides medical care to Prime TRICARE recipients (retirees and their families), providing both same-day and advanced appointments scheduled through the appointment line.

Sections within the Lawrence Joel U.S. Army Health and Dental Clinic include Drug and Alcohol and Mental Health (both in Building 167), Allergy/Immunizations, Laboratory, Optometry, Physical Examinations, Physical Therapy, Preventive Medicine, Radiology, Gynecology and Pediatrics. Primary Care Managers are located either on the Gold or Green Team. If TRICARE Prime recipients require specialty care, appropriate referrals will be considered.

Shuttle Bus

Military transportation to the Eisenhower Army Medical Center, Fort Gordon, is provided on a space-available basis Monday through Friday for patients with an appointment at the hospital or dental clinic there, based on the following priority: Active duty military personnel, TRICARE Prime enrollees, family members of active duty personnel (non-Prime), retired servicemembers (non-Prime) and family members of retired military personnel (non-Prime). The shuttle will run only if at least one patient is active duty.

The military shuttle departs from the Lawrence Joel U.S. Army Health and Dental Clinic at 6 a.m. The shuttle driver registers riders beginning at 5:40 a.m. Seating, according to the priority scheme above, is provided on a first-come, first-served basis. Patients can park vehicles in the clinic parking lot and must have appointment slips available. Personnel going to Fort Gordon for a scheduled surgery that entails the use of anesthesia cannot ride the shuttle unless they are staying overnight. Personnel scheduled for surgery must make other arrangements for transportation due to the possibility of unexpected complications or schedule changes that could affect the shuttle's return to Fort McPherson. The last allowable appointment time is 1 p.m. so the shuttle driver can return to Fort McPherson by 4 p.m. For more information, call Headquarters Command, U.S. Army Garrison, at 404-464-3489.

Services

The Lawrence Joel U.S. Army Health Clinic provides a wide range of general and specialty outpatient services to infants, children and adults. The clinic has two primary care teams, each offering a variety of primary care services. Specialty services are provided in-house and by visiting providers. These services include Immunizations and Allergy, Gynecology, Orthopedics, Pediatrics, Podiatry, Dermatology, Pulmonary, Endocrinology and Internal Medicine. The clinic has a health education nurse available for individual teaching as requested by patients or their provider. The physical examination section provides flight, Reserve Officer Training Corps, periodic, over-40, chapter, ETS and retirement physicals.

School Physical Exams

Georgia schools require each child to have certification of screening for eye, ear, dental and immunization status. These screenings are only a certification that no eye, ear, dental or immunization problems exist that would interfere with a child's ability to learn. If a problem is determined, it can be brought to the attention of a parent with the recommendation to seek care. Parents can request specific appointments for these screenings at 404-464-2778.

The clinic staff also schedules open periods for school screening and sports physical appointments. Usually set for late summer, before school begins, designated times will be publicized in the Sentinel newspaper or on the garrison Web site at www.mcpherson.army.mil.

Pharmacy

The Lawrence Joel U.S. Army Health and Dental Clinic provides outpatient pharmacy services to eligible beneficiaries.

The Main Pharmacy, located in Building 125 at Fort McPherson, is open Monday through Friday from 7:45 a.m. until 4:45 p.m. The Refill Pharmacy is open Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. until 1 p.m. and from 2 to 4:45 p.m. Both the clinics and the pharmacies are closed on federal holidays and designated training holidays.

The Main Pharmacy staff fills only new prescriptions. To fill a new prescription, a number system is in place to manage customers on a first-come, first-served basis, based on the origin of the prescription. Active duty personnel in uniform and patients seen in the clinic take the "in-house" numbers, while other customers take a "civilian prescription" number.

The Refill Pharmacy, located in Building 366 at Fort McPherson, provides only prescription refill services. The most efficient way to refill prescriptions is to use the call-in refill service at 404-464-2165. Patients should keep track of the most current label to know how many refills are left (for example, one of three) and to provide the RX number needed for each prescription. Only numbers are used when calling in prescriptions. Prescriptions called in usually will be ready in one workday, although three to five workdays are possible. Priority for refill prescriptions is given to customers using the call-in service.

Two other options available to TRICARE eligible patients for filing prescriptions are the TRICARE Mail Order Pharmacy (TMOP) and the Managed Care Retail Network pharmacies. The TMOP will provide up to a 90-day supply of medications for $3. The retail network fulfills more urgent needs, such as antibiotics, on a weekend. Costs are $3 and $9, respectively, for up to a 30-day supply. This process works like any other insurance. Patients must present the prescription and the TRICARE PRIME card at a participating pharmacy to have most prescriptions filled.

Patients can call the Main Pharmacy at 404-464-0304, the pharmacy secretary at 404-464-0305 and the Main and Refill Pharmacies staffs at 404-464-0306 and 404-464-307. Patients also can visit the pharmacy Web page at www.mcpherson.army.mil/clinic/pharmacy.htm.

Dental Clinic

The Lawrence Joel U.S. Army Dental Clinic, which is located on the second floor of the health clinic, provides a full range of dental treatment and services for active duty Soldiers. The dental clinic staff also can provide information on the United Concordia Family Member and the Delta Dental Retiree plans.

Clinic hours are Monday through Friday from 7:30 a.m. until 4:15 p.m. Sick call hours are Monday through Friday from 7:30 until 10 a.m. After-hour emergency treatment can be found at any dental facility that accepts TRICARE.

For information or to make an appointment at the dental clinic, call 404-464-0361 or 404-464-0362.

SERVICES

Army Career and Alumni Program

As a civilian contractor working on 53 Army installations worldwide, the Army Career and Alumni Program (ACAP) has a good understanding of the military and the transition process.

ACAP serves Soldiers, their family members and civilian employees. Services, including career counseling and resume assistance, workshops and one-on-one counseling sessions designed to aid Soldiers and civilians in career choices, are available up to two years before for Soldiers planning to retire and up to one year before for Soldiers planning to separate. For Army retirees only, they and their authorized family members can utilize "ACAP for LIFE" on a space-available basis. All other military personnel, DA civilian employees and non-appropriated fund personnel can use ACAP for 180 days past their separation date.

Public law requires that Soldiers receive pre-separation counseling at least 90 days before separation so that benefits are fully understood. Call 404-464-2144 for an appointment.

The Georgia Department of Labor provides a Transition Assistance Program (TAP) workshop. This workshop lasts three-and-a-half days and covers all aspects of the job search, including setting a career objective, resume writing, interview techniques, and networking.

Many civilian and military educational opportunities are available.

Workbooks are provided with hand-out material. Workshop attendance is advised before beginning serious resume preparation. This service is open to transitioning military personnel, their adult family members and eligible civilian employees. For more information, call 404-464-2144.

Army Community Service

Army Community Service (ACS) offers real-life solutions for successful Army living. ACS equips people with the skills and education they need to face the challenge of military life today and tomorrow. Think of ACS when deploying, relocating, looking for employment, needing information or referrals, needing financial assistance and education, facing and working through crisis or looking for family assistance. ACS is located in Building 62 on Fort McPherson. Hours are from 7:30 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday, except Wednesday when the hours are from 7:30 a.m. until 12:30 p.m.

For more information, call the ACS staff at 404-464-4070, send a fax to 404-464-2979/4862, or visit the Web page at www.mcpherson.army.mil/ACS/.

Child Care

The Fort McPherson Child Development Center (CDC), Building 514, is accredited by the National Academy of Early Childhood Programs. Its primary goal is to provide educational learning experiences and varied opportunities that promote the child's physical, social and intellectual growth.

The following Fort McPherson and Fort Gillem sponsors are eligible for childcare services: active duty and retired military personnel, DoD civilian employees and military reserve and National Guard personnel on active duty.

Children must have a current shot record and be between the ages of 6 and 12 to receive care.

One program offered by the CDC is full-day care. This program promotes the fundamental needs and growth of each child. The pre-kindergarten program offers a planned curriculum with emphasis on preparedness for kindergarten.

The CDC also offers hourly care to accommodate families on a space-available basis. Reservations must be made in advance. Meals include breakfast, lunch and a snack supplement served daily according to USDA guidelines.

For more information, visit the CDC or call 404-464-3945 or 404-464-2759. The center is closed weekends and federal holidays. Hours of operation are Monday through Friday from 6 a.m. until 6 p.m.

Civilian Employee Assistance

The Civilian Personnel Advisory Center (CPAC) is located in Building 184, Fort McPherson, and is open to managers, supervisors and employees from 9 a.m. until 3 p.m. daily. The CPAC provides counseling and placement assistance to family members seeking federally appropriated- and non-appropriated-fund jobs. Customers can call the Job Information Center at 404-464-2502.

Education Center

mission is to provide quality education opportunities to support the total Army goals, to enhance the quality of life within the military community and to offer individualized career development through voluntary educational programs.

The Education Center offers professional counseling services, the Army Tuition Assistance Program, Servicemembers Opportunity College Army Degrees information, the Academic Learning Center, Army Correspondence Course Program information, the Army/American Council on Education Registry Transcript System and academic and Army Personnel Testing.

The Academic Learning Center provides a resource for independent, self-paced learning. Computers with Internet capability are available for student use.

Excelsior College Examinations, CLEP, DSST, GMAT, GRE, Praxis, ACT, SAT, TABE, interest inventories and certification exams are some of the tests administered or funded through the testing program.

On-post colleges include Georgia Military College (GMC), Saint Leo University (SLU) and Central Michigan University (CMU). GMC offers associate degrees in business administration, criminal justice, education and general studies. Degrees at SLU include a Bachelor of Arts degree in Liberal Arts with concentrations in sociology, business administration, criminology and human resource administration and a Bachelor of Science degree in Computer Information Systems. At the graduate level, a Master of Science degree in administration can be earned at CMU. Classes are held during off-duty hours. GMC and SLU have five terms per year. CMU schedules classes on a weekend format, with classes meeting on alternating weekends.

Servicemembers Opportunity College (SOC) degree programs promote a systematic, flexible opportunity for mobile military students to complete college degrees. Distance learning degree programs provide yet another alternative means of earning a college degree. External degree programs provide an alternative and non-traditional means of earning college degrees. Tuition assistance and VA benefits can be used according to appropriate eligibility. Colleges in the Atlanta area provide an array of educational choices for the military community.

Although the Fort McPherson Education Center is funded to support active duty military personnel, services are provided on a space-available basis for family members, veterans, retired military personnel and DA civilian employees. Counselors are available Monday through Friday from 7:30 a.m. until 4 p.m. in Building 60. For more information, call 404-464-3925 or 404-464-3866.

Inspector General

A full service Inspector General (IG) office supports the U.S. Army Garrison at Fort McPherson and Fort Gillem. This office serves servicemembers, military family members, military retirees, DoD civilian employees and private citizens who have personal or public issues in military-related matters. The IG office receives, reviews and processes requests for assistance and complaints, ensuring prompt, courteous and appropriate action is taken in each case.

The IG office is in Building 179, Fort McPherson. For more information, call 404-464-4427/4400.

Library

The library, located in Building 250, Fort McPherson, offers materials in all subject fields in support of morale, welfare, recreation, education and training programs. The library provides books, magazines, videocassettes, DVDs, newspapers, audiocassettes, inter-library loan service, official publications and regulations.

The Library presents a weekly story via telephone line for pre-school age children. The story is changed each Monday. To hear a story, call DIAL-A-STORY (404-464-2504). The stories include fairy tales and fables.

The Fort McPherson post library.

In addition, on-line databases that offer full-text articles from magazines and professional journals include ProQuest, FirstSearch, EBSCO's MAS Ultra and Facts.com.

The Library is open Monday through Friday from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m. and Saturday from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. For more information, call 404-464-2665.

Public Affairs Office

The Public Affairs Office, located at Hodges Hall, Building 65 on Fort McPherson, is responsible for the internal and external information programs for both Fort McPherson and Fort Gillem.

A major function of the office includes keeping servicemembers, civilian employees, retirees and the family members of each of those groups informed of the benefits and opportunities available to them both on post and in the local community. This function is accomplished through the weekly post newspaper, the Sentinel, as well as through the Channel 21 cable access channel, the garrison Web site (www.mcpherson.army.mil) and post-wide e-mail messages.

The Public Affairs Office staff also keeps the local and, sometimes, national civilian communities informed of events occurring on post through its work with media outlets. The Public Affairs Office staff writes and distributes media releases, answers media queries, escorts media on post and acts as the liaison between media outlets and installation personnel.

The relationship between Fort McPherson and Fort Gillem and their local communities is further enhanced through partnership agreements and activities, mentoring and volunteer programs, tours and other special events coordinated through the Public Affairs Office.

The Army in Atlanta Museum, located in Building 56 on Fort McPherson, is part of the Public Affairs Office. The museum, which first opened during the Army birthday celebration in June 2002, offers visitors 7,500 square feet of exhibit space filled with well-lighted, carpeted galleries displaying uniforms, weapons, footwear, mess equipment and helmets. The museum is open weekdays from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m.

The Public Affairs Office staff produces several publications, including historical books, tour pamphlets, annual economic impact cards and this Army in Atlanta Installation Guidebook.

The community outreach staff administers outreach programs at local elementary, middle and high schools, recruiting volunteers to mentor and otherwise work with the children.

The school liaison staff provides a link between parents and local schools. The staff coordinates education issues with community schools, keeps the command informed on school issues affecting Army children, promotes parental involvement in schools and manages the partnership between the garrison command and school superintendents. Anyone new to the area who would like information about school ratings, student-to-teacher ratios, test scores and more can find that information through the school liaison officer.

For more information on Public Affairs Office activities, call 404-464-2446.

Directorate of Emergency Services (DES)

The Directorate of Emergency Services (DES) is composed of the Provost Marshal Office and Fire Department. The DES brings fire protection/prevention, emergency medical services, law enforcement, access control and physical security under one directorate.

Building 102, Fort McPherson, and Building 104, Fort Gillem, house the two military police stations. Building 106, Fort McPherson, and Building 103, Fort Gillem, house the two fire stations. In an emergency on either post, call 911 from a standard telephone. In non-emergency situations, call the Fort McPherson military police at 404-464-2281 or 404-464-2282, or the Fort Gillem military police at 404-469-5581 or 404-469-5982.

Military working dogs teams are part of the Directorate of Emergency Services.

Vehicle Registration Office (VREG)

For access to the installations, privately owned vehicles of active duty, reserve component or retired military personnel and DoD civilian employees must be registered with the Provost Marshal Vehicle Registration section. Vehicles may be registered at Building 181, Fort McPherson, or at Building 104, Fort Gillem. Personnel can register their vehicles at the Fort Gillem Military Police Station, Building 104. The Fort Gillem VREG hours are Monday through Friday from 7 a.m. until 1 p.m. and from 2 until 4 p.m. The Fort McPherson VREG hours are the same except on Wednesday, when the office closes for the day at 11 a.m. Both VREG offices are closed weekends and training and federal holidays.

Visitors to the installation without a DoD decal and DoD-issued identification card must obtain a daily visitor pass. At Fort McPherson, during normal duty hours (Monday through Friday, excluding holidays), visitor passes may be obtained at the Fort McPherson Visitor Center (Building 312). On weekends, holidays and during non-duty hours, visitor passes may be obtained from access control personnel at the installation gates.

For more information on vehicle registration, call 404-464-2918.

Buckle Up and Slow Down

All personnel assigned to Fort McPherson or Fort Gillem are required to follow Fort McPherson Regulation 190-5 (Installation Motor Vehicle Traffic Regulations), which is available at the Vehicle Registration Office at Building 312, Fort McPherson, and Building 104, Fort Gillem. This regulation prescribes speed limits, safety requirements and parking information.

Georgia law mandates seatbelt use. Speed limits on both posts are strictly enforced by radar. The speed limit on Fort McPherson is 20 miles per hour and the speed limit on Fort Gillem is posted from 15 to 30 miles per hour, unless otherwise posted.

Physical Security

Personnel are encouraged to sign out an electric engraving pen from either their unit supply sergeant or the Provost Marshal Office, Physical Security Section, Building 101, Fort McPherson. Personnel can use engravers to mark any surface for identifying purposes. Personnel also should fill out a personal inventory form and, for Soldiers living in billets, provide a copy to their personal insurance companies. The personal property inventory form should include a list of any credit cards.

All personnel are encouraged to join "Office Watch," using the code word "SECURE" as follows:

Religious services are available at both installations.

- Secure your pocketbook
- Engrave your valuables for identification
- Check and inventory assets regularly
- Use operation ID
- Report suspicious activity
- Ensure safes are locked

Atlanta is an exciting, vibrant city and there are plenty of activities to take in. As in every metropolis, crime is an up-front and personal issue. Use common sense. Use the buddy system when possible, stay alert and know your surroundings. Be aware of who is in front of and behind you. Plan the safest, well-lighted, most-populated route and use it. Walk with friends, if possible. Don't take shortcuts through parks, tunnels, parking lots or alleys. Carry your purse close to your body and keep a firm grip on it. Carry a wallet in an inside coat or side trouser pocket. Have your key in your hand as you approach your vehicle or home. If your car breaks down, raise the hood, use flares or tie a white cloth on the door handle and stay in the locked car. If someone stops, ask him or her to call for help.

Fire Prevention

Contractors performing hot work on either Fort McPherson or Fort Gillem will require a permit. Permits can be obtained by contacting the Fire Prevention Office at Building 106, telephone 404-464-3956; the Fort McPherson Fire Station, Building 119, telephone 404-464-4386; or the Fort Gillem Fire Station, Building 106, telephone 404-469-5531.

When using a personal cell phone to call 911, Atlanta 911, East Point 911, Forest Park 911 or Clayton County 911 may receive your call, depending on which post you are at. Alert the answering 911 operator of which post you are at so that the local 911 center can be contacted. All hardwire phones located on both forts should connect with the posts' 911 center.

Fire Prevention personnel are always available to address any life safety of fire concerns.

Religious Activities

The office of the Garrison Chaplain is located in Building 51 at Fort McPherson. An administrative office and three chapels provide comprehensive religious support, including pastoral rites, ceremonies, sacraments, ordinances, worship, educational opportunities and pastoral counseling, to Soldiers, DoD civilian employees and their families. Many activities and programs are offered, including Sunday worship services, religious education, Mass, Vacation Bible School, Soldiers' dinners, Bible studies, choirs, children's groups, retreats and seminars.

The Cantonment Chapel, Building 240, and the Post Chapel, Building 42, are located at Fort McPherson. The Fort Gillem Post Chapel is Building 734.

Services are as follows:

Fort McPherson - Sunday
Cantonment Chapel - Mass,
9:30 a.m.
Post Chapel - 11 a.m.

Fort Gillem - Sunday
Post Chapel - 11 a.m.

For more information on religious activities, call 404-464-2004 or 404-469-7395.

Staff Judge Advocate

The Garrison Legal Assistance Office, Building 41, provides free legal advice, counseling and document preparation to active duty and retired military personnel and their family members. Services include wills, powers of attorney, consumer contracts, taxes, divorce, leases, debts and other personal legal matters. Assistance is not given on commercial or income-generating matters.

Operating hours are from 7:30 a.m. until 4:15 p.m. Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday, and from 7:30 until 11:30 a.m. Wednesday. Wednesdays, from 8:30 until 11 a.m., "walk-in" assistance is available on simple, general questions of law that do not require an attorney to prepare correspondence.

The Claims Office processes claims for loss of or damage to household goods and automobiles shipped at government expense. Customers can file claims Monday through Friday.

For more information on legal services, call 404-464-2626 or visit the SJA Web site at www.mcpherson.army.mil/SJA/.

Veterinary Services

The Fort McPherson Veterinary Treatment Facility (VTF) is located at Building 105 on Fort McPherson, across the street from the Lawrence Joel U.S. Army Health and Dental Clinic. Active duty and retired servicemembers (Army,

The Fort McPherson Veterinary Treatment Facility offers microchipping services.

The Public Affairs Office's community outreach and school liaison functions help Soldiers and civilian employees to mentor children and to participate in local school activities.

Navy, Air Force and Marines) authorized to use military medical facilities are also authorized to use the VTF for their pets.

The VTF provides general health care for pets, including vaccinations for dogs and cats, health checks, heartworm testing and more. Diagnostics, such as blood work, is also available. Likewise, medical management of disease is offered to all pets requiring veterinarian-prescribed medications.

Health certificates for moving or flying and consultations are provided at no cost.

The VTF is not a full-service veterinary facility, however, some surgical services (such as spays, castrations and tumor removal), as well as the treatment of heartworms, are available. The VTF sells a variety of items for pets, including monthly heartworm preventive, flea and tick preventive and veterinary shampoos.

There is no fee for an appointment, and your only costs will be for services rendered or products bought. Appointments should be made for pets to be seen. This facility guarantees clients the best care in the timeliest manner for the most reasonable cost possible.

To make an appointment or for more information, call the Fort McPherson Veterinary Treatment Facility staff at 404-464-2911. Hours of operation are Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. Saturday clinics are also offered each month for your convenience.

For more information, visit the VTF Web site at www.mcpherson.army.mil/VetClinic.

Wellness Center

The Community Wellness Center supports the Army in maintaining and enhancing readiness by providing comprehensive wellness programs and services that promote and enhance healthy lifestyles and the total quality of life for military and civilian personnel at home, at work and in the community. Specific emphasis is given to preventing the adverse effects of alcohol and drugs and their related, high-risk behaviors.

The Wellness Center is a command-directed and community-focused program that proudly provides professional, world-class service for its world-class community in an atmosphere of strict confidentiality and compassionate caring.

Programs offered include:

- ★ Education and prevention. This program implements, administers and supervises comprehensive, target group-oriented, preventive education and training in alcohol and other drug abuse and related areas.
- ★ Biochemical testing. Biochemical testing is the chemical analysis of urine for specific drugs or the analysis of breath or blood for alcohol.
- ★ The Employee Assistance Program (EAP). This program involves the screening and gathering of information about employees and problems that may have a negative impact on their job performance. This process can help determine the appropriate type of referral necessary for successful resolution of a workplace problem.
- ★ The Smoking Cessation Program (SCP). The SCP is not limited to smoking cessation, but includes other tobacco products, such as chewing tobacco and snuff. The SCP consists of assessment, counseling, education, support and nicotine replacement therapy.

The Wellness Center also offers the Work-Site Wellness Program (WWP). This is a structured wellness program encompassing physical fitness, stress relief, anger management and other life management skills. Supervisors can approve up to three one-hour periods per week for civilian employees to formally enroll and participate in the WWP six months. The WWP allows each civilian employee a one-time enrollment per his or her career. The WWP offers a variety of fitness options, including aerobics classes, which are held at the center Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday from 11:45 a.m. to 12:45 p.m. and from 4:30 to 5:30 p.m. A nutrition class is conducted once a month by a certified nutritionist in the Wellness Center dining area. The focus of the class is preparing and consuming healthy meals. Copies of the recipes for each dish prepared are given to class attendees.

THE ARMY IN ATLANTA

The U.S. Army Garrison manages installation functions and services at Fort McPherson and Fort Gillem. As it facilitates everything from infrastructure to air space and Army family team building, the garrison works to ensure military activities and activities focus solely on their individual missions.

Garrison Soldiers and civilians provide cradle-to-grave support to the more than 167,000 active duty and reserve component military personnel, retirees, civilian employees and families served by Fort McPherson and Fort Gillem.

Garrison employees provide health, police and fire protection and personal and installation security at Fort McPherson and Fort Gillem. Along with personnel services, the garrison maintains buildings and grounds, buys and distributes supplies, operates the commissaries and assigns real estate and family housing.

The garrison provides legal, financial and social services support, facilitates chapels and religious services and administers youth and family activities.

Garrison employees provide information services and administer recreational and leisure services to active duty Soldiers, sailors, airmen, Marines, reserve component service personnel, DoD civilian employees, military retirees and the family members of each.

MAJOR MILITARY ACTIVITIES

DOES NOT INCLUDE 89-PLUS SUPPORTED UNITS AND ACTIVITIES

Today Fort McPherson and its satellite installation, Fort Gillem, provide administrative and logistical support to the Installation Management Agency, Southeast Region; U.S. Army Forces Command; Third U.S. Army/U.S. Army Forces Central Command; First U.S. Army; U.S. Army Reserve Command and many other military- and Atlanta-based activities.

A total force-sustaining installation that is customer focused and business based, Headquarters, U.S. Army Garrison, is always first in support, proudly serving today's Army.

Atlanta-based Activities

Army activities that depend on Fort McPherson and Fort Gillem for support can be found throughout the Atlanta metropolitan area and beyond. Those activities include:

- ★ The American Red Cross Armed Forces Emergency Service Center provides a network of emergency services, available 24 hours a day, for military personnel and their families assigned to Fort McPherson and Fort Gillem and for other military activities in the Atlanta area. Services include verification and rapid communication of family emergencies and access to financial assistance from the military aid societies. The center's toll-free number is 1-877-272-7337.
- ★ The Army Research Laboratory Software Technology Branch, located on the campus of the Georgia Institute of Technology (GIT) in Atlanta, was established in 1992. In 2000, the branch was renamed the Tactical Collaboration and Data Fusion Branch and reorganized under the Computational and Information Sciences Directorate (CISD). The CISD is located with the Army Research Laboratory (ARL), which is headquartered in Adelphi, Md. The staff of five scientists and engineers located at GIT, along with other members of CISD, plays a key role in information and technology research within the Army and the DoD. With a research mission focused on battle-field communications and networks, data fusion and knowledge management, battlespace weather and environmental effects, and computational science and engineering, CISD is poised to provide the Army with the necessary advances in information technology to transition the Army Objective Force. The CISD mission areas include the operation of the ARL DoD Major Shared Resource Center (MSRC) Research Center and the ARL Collaborative Technology Alliance for Communications and Networks. The directorate works closely with many academic, industry and government partners to accomplish its mission responsibility of operating and maintaining the ARL technological infrastructure.

- ★ The Atlanta Personnel Assistance Point (PAP) operates at Hartsfield International Airport. The only facility of its kind in the nation, the PAP provides command and control for Soldiers and their families en route to permanent change of station to and from locations overseas; supports contingency operations; coordinates aerial port operations; and provides on-the-spot help to military travelers, their family members and DoD civilian employees. The staff is trained to help with problems associated with emergency leave, temporary billeting, non-sufficient funds, lost orders and leave papers, missed port calls, flight delays and reschedules. The PAP issues provisional passes for stranded Soldiers, administers leave extensions, coordinates billeting and messing, resolves administrative and logistical impediments to onward movements, provides port call support, assists in the reception and processing of non-combatant evacuees and resolves passport and visa problems.

- ★ The DA Regional Representative for the Federal Aviation Administration is a joint military services activity located in Atlanta. This activity serves as the executive agent for the U.S. Army regarding air space, aeronautical information, air traffic control, flight procedures policy and obstruction evaluation. It provides community liaison support, responding to community aeronautical concerns and requests for assistance. The activity is the southern regional satellite of the U.S. Aeronautical Services Agency at Fort Belvoir, Va.
- ★ The U.S. Army Audit Agency moved to downtown Atlanta in 1948 with the mission of ensuring accountability in both the active Army and reserve components primarily in the southeastern portion of the United States. In July 2000 the Atlanta Field Office moved from downtown to Fort McPherson. It serves America's Army by providing objective and independent auditing services. These services help the Army make informed decisions, resolve issues, use resources effectively and satisfy statutory and fiduciary responsibilities.
- ★ The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, South Atlantic Division, established in Atlanta in 1943, is the southeast regional office for the Corps. It is responsible for military and civil planning, design and construction for eight southeastern states, Puerto Rico and the U.S. Virgin Islands, and for an extensive overseas program in Central and South America.

The Corps designed and built or supervised the construction of many Fort McPherson and Fort Gillem facilities, including Marshall Hall. In its historic role as a constructor of major water projects, the Corps built local landmarks Lake Lanier, located northeast of Atlanta, and Lake Allatoona, an almost 12,000-acre Corps of Engineers reservoir located northwest of the city. Fort McPherson's U.S. Army Recreation Area is located on this lake. Among its current projects, the South Atlantic Division is managing the world's largest environmental restoration project in the Everglades in South Florida. This division serves the Army in Atlanta and the nation through engineering support to the Army and Air Force in the southeast and through the operation, maintenance and improvement of waterways, harbors, hydro-electric dams and other facilities.

- ★ The U.S. Army Recruiting Battalion-Atlanta is located in Smyrna and oversees five companies and 33 recruiting stations in the northern two-thirds of Georgia. The organization is located at 2400 Herodian Way, Suite 490. To contact the U.S. Army Recruiting Battalion-Atlanta staff, call 770-951-0898 or 770-951-0899 or send an e-mail message to 3abnapa@usarec.army.mil.

Southeast Region, Installation Management Agency

The Southeast Region, Installation Management Agency, is located at Building 171 at Fort McPherson and brings together base operations support services for eight states and Puerto Rico, ensuring optimal care, support and training of our fighting force. The agency oversees all facets of installation support, including environmental programs, construction, morale and welfare, family care, force protection and logistics. The Southeast Region directs, enables, and oversees southeast garrisons, assesses and conveys resource requirements to DA, and responds to emerging installation management requirements within the Southeast Region.

The Southeast Region, which was activated Oct. 1, 2002, manages six former Army Material Command installations, five former U.S. Army Installation Management Agency, Southeast Region.

THE ARMY IN ATLANTA

Training and Doctrine Command installations, six former U.S. Army Forces Command installations, two former U.S. Army Forces Southern Command installations, and one former Military Traffic Management Control installation. In addition, the Southeast Region has responsibilities associated with the following installations: Fort McClellan, Ala.; the Alabama Army Ammunition Plant (AAP); the Memphis Defense Distribution Depot, Tenn.; Lexington Army Depot, Ky.; Volunteer AAP, Tenn.; and Tarheel AAP, N.C.

The Southeast Region is clearly a large part of today's Army. The Southeast Region serves 36 percent of all Soldiers in the Army and 31 percent of the Army's family members. The Region also manages 32 percent of Army housing and 32 percent of Residential Community Initiative (RCI) privatized housing stocks while accounting for 24 percent of Morale, Welfare and Recreation income.

The Southeast Region supports senior mission commanders by relieving them of the requirement to oversee day-to-day garrison operations. The Southeast Region monitors and assists in allocation of resources; assesses, analyzes and enforces standards; provides a trained garrison workforce; maintains situational awareness; achieves regional efficiencies; leads assigned installations; and supports mission and transformation initiatives.

U.S. Army Forces Command

U.S. Army Forces Command (FORSCOM) is the Army Component of U.S. Joint Forces Command and is the Army's largest major command. Headquartered at Fort McPherson, FORSCOM commands Active Component and U.S. Army Reserve forces in the continental United States (CONUS) and Puerto

Headquarters, U.S. Army Forces Command.

Rico. Following mobilization, FORSCOM assumes command and control of Army National Guard and U.S. Army Reserve units preparing for deployment.

As the Army Component of Joint Forces Command, FORSCOM provides domestic disaster and emergency response assistance and supports Joint Forces Command's joint integration and joint experimentation missions.

In addition to our responsibilities to the Joint Forces Command, FORSCOM is also the Army force provider to U.S. Northern Command (NORTHCOM). NORTHCOM's mission is to deter, prevent, and defeat threats and aggression aimed at the United States, its territories and interests, and provides military assistance, including consequence management operations, to civil authorities.

Through NORTHCOM, FORSCOM supports homeland defense by protecting key national assets, assisting in civil defense and helping to protect against terrorism. FORSCOM is America's federal emergency response force, helping civilian authorities prevent loss of life, relieving suffering during emergencies and natural disasters and, through NORTHCOM's Joint Task Force, providing support to counter-narcotic operations.

The 32d Army Air and Missile Defense Command (AAMDC) falls within the authority and under the operational control of FORSCOM. The 32d AAMDC is the Army Forces and Joint Forces Land Component Commanders' (ARFOR/JFLCC) organization that performs critical theater air and missile defense planning, integration, coordination and execution functions. The 32d AAMDC coordinates and integrates the four operational elements (or pillars) of theater missile defense (TMD) (passive defense; active defense; attack operations; and battle management/command, control, communications, computers and intelligence) to protect contingency, forward deployed and reinforcing forces, as well as designated theater strategic assets. The 32d AAMDC commands echelon-above-corps air defense artillery brigades and other assigned forces.

The 32d AAMDC is based at Fort Bliss, Texas. Current Army authorization documents provide for two AAMDC's (one Active/Reserve Component and one fully Reserve Component).

As an Army major command, FORSCOM trains, mobilizes and deploys ready land forces in support of operations worldwide. It establishes training requirements, provides training support and oversight and evaluates the training of Active Component Army National Guard and U.S. Army Reserve units.

FORSCOM has more than 730,000 active and Reserve component Soldiers and more than 2,200 civilian employees. It consists of 16 Active Component major subordinate commands, including three U.S. Armies and three Corps.

First U.S. Army at Fort Gillem and Fifth U.S. Army at Fort Sam Houston, Texas, are Forces Command's two Continental U.S. Armies. They are responsible for the training support, oversight, post-mobilization training and deployment of Reserve Component units in CONUS, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands. Third U.S. Army, located at Fort McPherson, is the Army Component of U.S. Central Command, the joint command responsible for Southwest Asia, the Persian Gulf and the Horn of Africa.

I Corps at Fort Lewis, Washington, III Corps at Fort Hood, Texas, and XVIII Airborne Corps at Fort Bragg, North Carolina, are FORSCOM's three Corps. They include six Active Component divisions, two Active Component/Army National Guard Integrated Divisions, two cavalry regiments, numerous divisional brigades and a range of combat support and combat service support units.

As Part of the Army's continuing transformation to a more expeditionary force, FORSCOM's divisions are transforming to units of employment and brigade combat teams of action—modular units that will allow the Army to rapidly respond to a greater variety of situations.

U.S. Army South, located at Fort Sam Houston, is the Army component of U.S. Southern Command, the joint command responsible for Central and South America and the Caribbean.

The U.S. Army Reserve Command, with approximately 179,000 U.S. Army Reserve Soldiers and 8,600 DA civilian employees, is FORSCOM's only reserve component major subordinate command. It commands all U.S. Army Reserve conventional forces in the Continental U.S. and Puerto Rico, including 13 theater-level war fighting support headquarters, 11 Regional Readiness Commands, five Training Support

Headquarters, U.S. Army Reserve Command.

Divisions and seven Individual Training Divisions. U.S. Army Reserve units are part of the federal force. Their primary focus in the war fight is combat support and combat service support specialties, such as medical, civil affairs, transportation and chemical warfare.

Before mobilization, FORSCOM exercises training readiness oversight of U.S. Army Reserve forces. Upon mobilization, FORSCOM assumes command and control of mobilized U.S. Army Reserve units.

Army National Guard forces in the CONUS, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands, when not federalized, are under the command and control of the adjutant general of their respective states, territories and the District of Columbia. FORSCOM provides these approximately 351,000 Soldiers training support and oversight. These forces include eight combat divisions, 14 of 15 enhanced separate brigades, two of three strategic reserve brigades, Weapons of Mass Destruction - Civil Support Teams and extensive combat support and combat service support units. Upon mobilization, FORSCOM assumes command and control of mobilized units through deployment.

U.S. Army Reserve Command

The U.S. Army Reserve Command (USARC) was established in October 1990 as a major subordinate command of U.S. Army Forces Command. In September 1998, the USARC moved from leased facilities into their newly constructed headquarters building on Fort McPherson. Approximately 1,000 civilians, contractors and Soldiers work at the headquarters.

The USARC commands, controls and supports all Army Reserve troop units in the continental United States, except psychological operations, civil affairs and Special Forces units. The USARC also ensures the readiness of its forces and prepares over 2,000 Troop Program Units under its command to mobilize in support of military contingencies and operations other than war. The Chief, Army Reserve, Washington, D.C., also serves as the commanding general of the U.S. Army Reserve Command. More than 200,000 Army Reserve Soldiers belong to the USARC, training one weekend a month and two weeks each year in their respective military skills.

THE ARMY IN ATLANTA

The command and control structure of the USARC is focused on training, readiness, supporting mobilization and providing federal military support to other federal agencies. Ten Regional Readiness Commands located throughout the United States provide resource, logistics and personnel management to all Army Reserve units within their region.

The Army Reserve is a principal provider of combat support and combat service support for the Total Army. Army Reserve Soldiers contribute to national security by participating in humanitarian, nation-building and peacekeeping missions worldwide. Over 100,000 Army Reserve Soldiers have been mobilized in support of the Global War on Terror, serving in the Balkan countries, Southwest Asia including in Kuwait and Iraq and in other areas around the world.

At home, Army Reserve Soldiers are actively involved in the Homeland Defense anti-terrorism effort while continuing to provide support to disaster relief efforts following both natural and man-made disasters.

Third U.S. Army / U.S. Army Forces Central Command / Coalition Forces Land Component Command

The Third U.S. Army/U.S. Army Forces Central Command (ARCENT) is committed to supporting the objectives of U.S. Central Command (CENTCOM) in some of the most volatile regions of the globe—the Middle East, South and Central Asia. In 1998, CENTCOM assumed responsibility for Kazakhstan, Kyrgyzstan, Tajikistan, Turkmenistan and Uzbekistan, in turn broadening ARCENT's mission in this very important region of the world.

Assigned as the Army component to CENTCOM, Third Army/ARCENT is the only Army-level headquarters in our force structure today manned and ready to provide the CENTCOM with a fully deployable, warfighting command and control headquarters anywhere in the world. Third Army/ARCENT is capable of commanding ground combat forces operating as a joint task force, a coalition joint task force or as an Army echelon-above-corps headquarters.

During wartime, Third Army/ARCENT becomes the Coalition Forces Land Component Command (CFLCC), responsible for commanding all forces involved in ground operations in its area of responsibility.

Since its inception in 1918, Third Army has played major roles in America's military history, serving in World Wars I and II, the Persian Gulf War and now the war on terrorism in Afghanistan, Iraq and other parts of the region. Over and over, Third Army has demonstrated its determination, capabilities and flexibility to deter aggression in different parts of the world.

Third Army does not have a fixed force structure of assigned units. Instead, it has a central reservoir composed of both active and reserve units based throughout the United States from which it may draw forces tailored to specific situations. In short, Third Army continually customizes packages geared to sustain operation in the region 365 days a year in support of our national security objectives and obligations, filling a vital defense need and complementing Third Army's rich heritage and proud traditions.

Under the leadership of Gen. George S. Patton Jr., Third Army participated in eight major operations in World War II, fighting through France, Belgium, Luxembourg, Germany, Czechoslovakia and Austria. After performing Army-of-occupation duty following Germany's surrender, Third Army returned to Atlanta in March 1947. Later that year, it moved to Fort McPherson, where it remained until it inactivated Oct. 1, 1973. In December 1982, Third Army was reactivated in Atlanta and assumed its current mission.

Third Army once again demonstrated its flexibility and capability when it was deployed to Saudi Arabia in August 1990 to assume its role as the senior Army headquarters under CENTCOM. At the peak of the build-up, the Third Army command oversaw more than 338,000 coalition forces, including 303,000 U.S. Army Soldiers and British and French ground forces.

Third Army was responsible for deploying, receiving and sustaining all Army forces deployed to the Persian Gulf in 1990 and 1991. The headquarters developed the initial defensive plan for Saudi Arabia, and later the offensive ground plan. Following the war, Third Army supervised the relief effort to restore life support facilities in Kuwait and provided protection for Iraqi refugees in southern Iraq.

Third Army headquarters returned to Fort McPherson in May 1991. In 1992, and again in 1993, Third Army formed and deployed joint task forces to Kuwait in response to Iraqi threats. Since the end of Operation Desert Storm, Third Army has deployed combat forces to Southwest Asia nine times to deter aggression.

During Operations Desert Thunder and Desert Fox in the late '90s, ground, sea and land forces conducted vital operations that demonstrated our national resolve to maintain peace and stability in the region. Third Army plans and executes an intensive schedule of joint and combined exercises in countries throughout the region, including the "Intrinsic Action" series in Kuwait and the "Bright Star" series in Egypt. Also, the headquarters manages the pre-positioned equipment program in this region to sustain a rapid response to future crisis.

Immediately following the tragic terrorist attacks on the World Trade Center and the Pentagon in September 2001, Third Army/ARCENT began preparing for its role in the global war on terrorism. In November 2001, Third Army/ARCENT commanded the ground forces involved in combat operations in Afghanistan to destroy Al-Qaeda and the Taliban government that supported and harbored terrorist networks. The headquarters turned over responsibility for the operation to the XVIII Airborne Corps in May 2002.

A few months later, Third Army/ARCENT deployed again as CFLCC Headquarters to Kuwait in preparation for Operation Iraqi Freedom to remove the Saddam Hussein Regime and liberate the people of Iraq as part of the global war on terrorism. Much of the combat phase of this operation was viewed live around the world due to an unprecedented combination of embedded media and satellite video technology. Third Army Soldiers continue providing support to the ongoing stability and support phase of this campaign while simultaneously preparing for the next crisis, contingency or war. After decisive combat operations, the CFLCC was designated as the Coalition Joint Task Force-Seven (CJTTF-7). On June 15, 2003, V U.S. Corps assumed responsibilities as the CJTTF-7 and Third Army resumed responsibilities as CFLCC/ARCENT/Third Army. A portion of the Third Army/CFLCC staff remains forward deployed in Kuwait.

The Soldiers of the Third Army remain focused on global agility, strategic and operational imperatives and warfighting leadership in joint and coalition operations.

The Army Ground Forces Band

The 214th Army Band (The Army Ground Forces Band) was organized in 1845 in Texas as the 4th Infantry Regiment Band. Its heritage, which includes 26 campaign streamers and two awards of the French Croix de Guerre, spans the Mexican War, the Civil War, the War with Spain, the Philippine Insurrection and both world wars.

During the battle of Monterey, Mexico, the band captured and turned an artillery battery against the enemy. To commemorate this distinguished service, President Zachary Taylor authorized the band to wear red piping on the uniform, making it the only Army band to receive a combat distinction from a president of the United States.

The band fought with the victorious Third Division, which spearheaded the Battle of the Marne in July of 1918. Having served in Alaska during World War II, the band participated in the Aleutian Islands operation in May of 1943. Following World War II, the 4th Infantry Regiment Band was re-designated the 214th Army Band. Since 1945, this organization has been stationed in Fort Lewis, Wash.; Fort Hood, Texas; Fort Meade, Md.; Fort Richardson, Alaska; and Fort McPherson. The unit was reassigned as the band for Headquarters, U.S. Army Forces Command, Fort McPherson, in 1973. Secretary of the Army John O. Marsh Jr. conferred the special designation "The Army Ground Forces Band" in 1985.

U.S. Army Forces Command is charged with the combat readiness of active and reserve component Army units and the Army Ground Forces Band has been designated as the "Musical Ambassador of the American Combat Soldier." The mission of the Army Ground Forces Band is to fulfill the requirements of U.S. Army Forces Command at local, national, and international events by providing musical support for military, state, recruiting and civil functions, formal concerts, and recreational activities. The Army Ground Forces Band consists of a variety

First U.S. Army

First United States Army is the senior military activity at Fort Gillem.

First U.S. Army is one of two Continental U.S. Armies in U.S. Army Forces Command. Headquarters, First Army, is staffed by a specialized team of active Army, active Guard and Reserve Soldiers and DA civilian employees. It has an integrated command structure that includes more than 10,000 Active and Reserve Component Soldiers.

First Army’s area of operations includes 27 states east of the Mississippi River (including Minnesota), two territories (Puerto Rico and the U.S. Virgin Islands), and the District of Columbia. Its customer base involves support to more than 350,000 RC Soldiers.

First Army’s mission centers around the three core functions of training and readiness: support, mobilization of RC forces and Homeland Defense.

First Army enhances the combat readiness of Reserve Component Soldiers and units by providing training and readiness support. It facilitates the RC unit’s ability to execute missions throughout the full spectrum of military operations. This is done by providing observer/controller trainers and maintaining direct contact with RC units.

First Army plans, prepares and executes the mobilization and deployment of RC units to provide combat-ready forces to war fighting combatant commanders. It supports presidential reserve call-ups (such as Bosnia, Kosovo and Kuwait) as well as full and partial mobilizations (such as support of Homeland Defense (HLD)). In fulfilling this responsibility, First Army has mobilized more than 110,000 Army National Guard and Army Reserve troops for Operations Enduring Freedom, Noble Eagle, and Iraqi Freedom since Sept. 11, 2001.

First Army conducts HLD in support of national objectives, as directed. This means that First Army is the regional DoD planning agent for military support to civil authorities (MSCA) during a response to natural or man-made disasters. This mission directly supports the Federal Response Plan during disaster relief operations. Normally led by the Emergency Preparedness and Response Directorate and the Federal Emergency Management Agency and joined by 27 federal agencies, including the American Red Cross, First Army Soldiers and civilian employees are proud of their mission to assist American families during times of crisis. The size of the First Army (and military) response depends upon the magnitude of the event requiring military support.

First U.S. Army also performs two missions that, while not core functions, are significant in their importance to the Army: management of the Civilian Aides to the Secretary of the Army (CASA) program and support to the National Boy Scout Jamboree.

First Army serves as the higher headquarters for three reserve divisions (training support): the 85th Division (TS), headquartered in Arlington Heights, Ill.; the 78th Division (TS), headquartered in Edison, N.J.; and the 87th Division (TS), headquartered in Birmingham, Ala. The two important missions of training and readiness support and mobilization of RC Soldiers are accomplished through these three divisions.

First U.S. Army was formed in France on Aug. 10, 1918, with Gen. John J. Pershing commanding. As America's first numbered Army, First Army engaged in two major operations: the reduction of the St. Mihiel Salient, east of Verdun, and the Meuse-Argonne offensive, west of Verdun. After World War I and a short period of occupation in Europe, First Army was deactivated in 1919. It was reactivated at Fort Jay, N.Y., in 1933.

On D-Day, June 6, 1944, with Gen. Omar N. Bradley commanding, First U.S. Army troops landed on Omaha and Utah beaches in Normandy. First Army established an impressive record of "firsts" in World War II: First on the beaches of Normandy, first to break out of the Normandy beachhead, first to enter Paris, first to break through the Siegfried Line, first to cross the Rhine River and first to meet the Russians. After World War II, First Army headquarters was located on Governor's Island, N.Y. On Jan. 1, 1966, First and Second Armies merged and First Army headquarters moved to Fort Meade, Md. In 1973, First Army transitioned from an active Army-oriented organization to one dedicated to improving the readiness of reserve components. In 1983, another reorganization took place. Second Army was reactivated at Fort Gillem and assumed responsibility for reserve component matters in seven states and two territories formerly assigned to First Army. In 1991, Fourth U.S. Army was deactivated and its seven Midwestern states became part of First Army. In 1995, First and Second Armies were once again consolidated and First Army moved to Fort Gillem.

52nd Explosives Ordnance Group (EOD)

The wartime mission of the 52nd Explosives Ordnance Group (EOD) is to conduct force protection operations to defeat or lessen effects of conventional, unconventional (nuclear, biological, chemical or improvised explosive device) and terrorist munitions within its area of operations. Further, the group deploys, redeploys and assumes command and control of up to six ordnance battalions in a theater of operations supporting the theater commander.

At Fort Gillem, the group headquarters commands and controls four battalion headquarters and 39 companies geographically separated throughout the United States. The group also runs the U.S. Army Very Important Persons Protective Service Agency, responsible for joint service coordination and tasking of EOD support to the U.S. Secret Service and the U.S. State Department.

Military Entrance Processing Station

The Atlanta Military Entrance Processing Station (MEPS) is one of 65 MEPS located nationwide and in Puerto Rico. Under the umbrella of the U.S. Army Accessions Command, the U.S. Military Entrance Processing Command is a joint DoD agency staffed with personnel from all military services.

The Atlanta MEPS performs state-of-the-art testing, medical evaluation and processing for individuals wishing to enter military service. The MEPS has enlistment responsibility for 92 counties in Georgia, including 316 high schools and five strategically located Mobile Examination Test Sites. For more information on MEPS, visit the MEPS Web site at www.mepcom.army.mil/.

3d MP Group (CID) and its four organic battalions is to provide a full range of quality criminal investigative support and services for commanders, installations and other areas of Army interest in the 28 states east of the Mississippi, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, Central and South America and the Caribbean. It also is responsible for providing criminal investigative support to all Army interests within the U.S. Central Command (USCENTCOM) area of responsibility (AOR).

Currently, USCENTCOM's AOR comprises the 25 countries in Southwest Asia (Northern Red Sea Region, South and Central Asia, Arabian Peninsula, Iraq and the Horn of Africa). Investigative support to this operational theater includes: criminal investigations of felony crimes, logistical security, criminal intelligence assessments, personal security protection for DoD officials and visiting foreign dignitaries, force protection and safe guarding of critical resources in peacetime, combat and contingency operations. The group also works with other federal, state and local law enforcement agencies and uses the latest equipment, systems and investigative techniques to accomplish its mission.

The 3d MP Group (CID) is organized into a command group and seven staff divisions, including personnel and administration, operations, logistics, resource management, staff judge advocate, information management and Headquarters and Headquarters Detachment.

The group exercises command and control of 35 subordinate units. These units support key Army field elements, including: XVIII Airborne Division, Fort Bragg, N.C.; the 101st Air Assault Division (Light), Fort Campbell, Ky.; the Third Infantry Division, Fort Stewart; the 10th Mountain Division (Light), Fort Drum, N.Y.; and the Third U.S. Army (ARCENT). The 3d MP Group (CID) is also responsible for providing support for various major commands in their area, including: DA, U.S. Army Forces Command, U.S. Army Training and Doctrine Command, U.S. Central Command, U.S. Southern Command, U.S. Joint Forces Command and U.S. Special Operations Command.

U.S. Army Criminal Investigation Laboratory

The U.S. Army Criminal Investigation Laboratory (USACIL) provides forensic laboratory services to DoD investigative agencies and other federal law enforcement agencies.

USACIL also operates an Army school to train forensic laboratory examiners and manages the U.S. Criminal Investigation Command criminalistics program.

USACIL is the DoD forensic laboratory with the most extensive range of capabilities to support all defense criminal investigation organizations worldwide. It is a world class forensic laboratory staffed with the very best technical experts. The laboratory, equipped with state-of-the-art equipment, sets the standard for analysis in multiple forensic disciplines. USACIL performs the highest quality of forensic analysis in support of criminal investigations in the laboratory, at crime scenes or deployed into combat theaters. USACIL examiners routinely present expert testimony in criminal trials around the globe. The laboratory is continually developing its personnel and improving its equipment, methods and facilities to provide critical support to criminal justice, now and in the future.

Southeastern Army Reserve Intelligence Support Center

The Southeastern Army Reserve Intelligence Support Center (Language Lab) at Fort Gillem provides battle-focused intelligence training support to improve reserve component technical intelligence skills, proficiency and readiness.

The center augments the total force's intelligence and linguistic capabilities and supports multi-service reserve component intelligence personnel and units in satisfying requirements of warfighters and national intelligence agencies.

United States Army 2nd Recruiting Brigade

The U.S. Army 2nd Recruiting Brigade, headquartered at Fort Gillem, directs the efforts of nine recruiting battalions located throughout the southeastern United States. The battalions under the U.S. Army 2nd Recruiting Brigade are located in Smyrna; Columbia, S.C.; Jackson, Miss.; Jacksonville, Fla.; Miami; Tampa, Fla.; Montgomery, Ala.; Nashville, Tenn.; and Raleigh, N.C.

Headquarters functions include command management, administration, operations, liaison, program budget and accounting logistics, advertising and public affairs for operation of the brigade headquarters and its recruiting battalions.

Atlanta Distribution Center - Army and Air Force Exchange Service

The Army and Air Force Exchange Service Atlanta Distribution Center (ADC) mission is twofold: to receive, store and distribute retail, cost, food and expense merchandise to primary customers in the Southeastern United States and to receive, store and distribute specialized merchandise—music, video, jewelry, military clothing, catalog, books and magazines to customers worldwide.

The ADC completed construction of a 420,000-square-foot facility next to four existing 120,000-square-foot buildings at Fort Gillem in the spring of 1999, making it one of the most modern facilities of its kind.

U.S. Army Center for Health Promotion and Preventive Medicine (USACHPPM)

The U.S. Army Center for Health Promotion and Preventive Medicine (USACHPPM) lineage can be traced back over 50 years to the Army Industrial Hygiene Laboratory. That organization was established at the beginning of World War II and, under the direct jurisdiction of The Army Surgeon General, conducted occupational health surveys of Army-operated industrial plants, arsenals and depots. These surveys were aimed at identifying and eliminating occupational health hazards within the DoD's industrial production base and proved to be of great benefit to the nation's war effort.

USACHPPM's current mission is to provide worldwide technical support for implementing preventive medicine, public health, and health promotion and wellness services into all aspects of America's Army and the Army community, anticipating and rapidly responding to operational needs and adaptable to a changing world environment. The 1,056-person USACHPPM team is a linchpin of medical support to combat forces and of the military managed care system. It provides worldwide scientific expertise and services in clinical and field preventive medicine, environmental and occupational health, health promotion and wellness, epidemiology and disease surveillance, toxicology, and related laboratory sciences. Professional disciplines represented include chemists, physicists, engineers, physicians, optometrists, epidemiologists, audiologists, nurses, industrial hygienists, toxicologists, entomologists, and many others, as well as sub-specialties within these professions.

The USACHPPM headquarters is located at the Edgewood Area of Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md. Five subordinate commands are located at Fort George G. Meade, Md.; Fort Lewis, Wash.; Landstuhl, Germany; Camp Zama, Japan; and at Fort McPherson.

Located in Building 180 on Fort McPherson, USACHPPM South is divided into five divisions: entomological sciences, field preventive medicine, industrial hygiene, quality management support and environmental health engineering. These divisions provide training and services necessary to deliver preventive medicine support on demand, when and where it is needed to enhance the readiness of the United States Armed Forces through world-class entomological, environmental, industrial hygiene, quality management and field preventive medicine services.

For more information, visit the USACHPPM-South Web site at <http://chppm-www.apgea.army.mil/dsa-s/> or call 404-464-3332.

HISTORY OF FORT McPHERSON

HISTORY OF FORT McPHERSON

Re-enactors of American Soldiers from throughout history march in the Army birthday parade.

The history of the Army in Atlanta has evolved from the state militia's use of a pasture for a meeting place and drill ground in 1835—where McPherson sits today—to the current Army presence at Fort McPherson, Fort Gillem and various locations throughout Atlanta.

135 Years of History

Fort McPherson, situated on 487 acres of gently rolling terrain four miles southwest of the center of Atlanta is rich in military tradition dating back to 1867. It was during that year that a post was established in west Atlanta on the grounds where Spelman College is now located. Between the years 1867 and 1881, this post was garrisoned in turn by elements of the 2nd, 16th and 18th U.S. Infantry Regiments and the 5th Artillery. Their mission was to enforce Union regulations during the reconstruction period following the Civil War.

In October 1881, Secretary of War Robert T. Lincoln directed that the lease of the site be surrendered and the buildings sold at public auction. In compliance with this directive, McPherson Barracks was abandoned by U.S. troops on Dec. 8, 1881. Part of the site was purchased by the American Baptist Missionary Society for use by the Atlanta Baptist Female Seminary, which later became Spelman College. The U.S. Treasury realized $17,264.40 from the sale of the buildings.

On March 3, 1885, Congress passed the Sundry Civil Bill, which contained an initial sum of $15,000 for the purchase of land and the erection of a 10-company post. The task of site selection went to Maj. Gen. Winfield Scott Hancock, commanding general of the Division of the Atlantic. Five tracts of land amounting to 140.09 acres were purchased in September 1885. Capt. Joshua W. Jacobs, Assistant Quartermaster, was responsible for developing and implementing the first master plan for the post.

That same year, Maj. Gen. John A. Schofield, Chief of Staff, suggested the new post be formally named in honor of Maj. Gen. James Birdseye McPherson. During the Civil War, McPherson participated in the Battles of Jackson and Vicksburg, earning promotion to brigadier general. In 1864 he was killed while on a reconnaissance patrol during the Battle of Atlanta.

During the Spanish-American War, Fort McPherson served as a general hospital and as a recruit training center for nearly 20,000 men. Barracks were filled to overflowing and emergency tents were set up. It later became a POW facility, and by the end of July 1898, 16 Spanish Army prisoners were incarcerated in what is now the Post Chapel.

During World War I, Fort McPherson was selected to be an internment camp for German prisoners of war; a base hospital, General Hospital No. 6, and the site of an officers' training camp.

Studying Army in Atlanta Museum displays.

HISTORY OF FORT MCPHERSON

Immediately to the west of the post, across Campbellton Road, a war prison barracks was established to confine German prisoners of war. The prison camp reached a peak population of 1,411 in July 1918.

The Secretary of War directed that the permanent barracks of Fort McPherson be made available for general or base hospital use on June 23, 1917. The command of the post was turned over to the ranking medical officer and Fort McPherson transformed itself into a general hospital with a capacity of nearly 2,400 beds. It is estimated that over 10,000 patients were admitted from August 1917 to December 1918.

Fort McPherson served as the headquarters for the IV Corps Area from 1920 to 1923 and 1927 to 1934. In the 1930s, the post hospital was greatly expanded to serve as a rehabilitation center and the post served as the headquarters for District B of the Civilian Conservation Corps.

With the passage of the 1940 Selective Service Act and the outbreak of World War II, Fort McPherson activities were greatly expanded. In addition to serving as a general depot, a reception center was established to process thousands of men for entry into the service and the post again served as a major hospital center.

In August 1945, as World War II ended, the War Department reversed the flow of work at the induction center. Fort McPherson became a separation center for almost 200,000 Soldiers and processed countless others for reassignment.

Today, historic Fort McPherson is home to U.S. Army Forces Command, Third U.S. Army, the U.S. Army Reserve Command and the Installation Management Agency Southeast Region.

Visit the Army in Atlanta Museum

Established at Fort McPherson in 1999, the Army in Atlanta Museum officially opened its doors to the public June 14, 2002, in the historical district, Building 56, Troop Row, on the east end of Hedekin Field.

The museum offers visitors 7,500 square feet of exhibit space within an impressive historic masonry brick building that features large, well-lighted, carpeted galleries and hard wood floors. The building, which is climate controlled, is wheelchair accessible. An elevator serves to the second floor of the museum.

At the museum, visitors can trace with pride the footsteps of the Soldiers stationed at Fort McPherson and Fort Gillem from 1885 to the present. Visitors are exposed to an ever-changing kaleidoscope of uniforms, weapons, footwear, mess equipment and helmets. The museum offers several vehicles, tanks and artillery pieces from the two posts. Visitors can take a walking tour of the historic district of Fort McPherson and be introduced to the installation's rich history. The museum is open weekdays from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m.

The historic district of the post sits on 33 acres of land. The 40 buildings that comprise the historic district are listed on the National Register of Historic Places.

The following historical information pertaining to some of the buildings that make up the historic district is provided to introduce our readers to our installation's rich history. Begin your tour at Building 65, post headquarters:

Stop 1 - Hodges Hall(Building 65)

The post headquarters, Hodges Hall, was built in 1904 as a double barracks at a cost of $55,000. It has a distinctive horseshoe shape and is a departure from the 30-foot interval between the other barracks. This building is named in honor of Gen. Courtney Hodges, commander of Third United States Army and First United States Army during World War II. Today, this facility houses the post commander and staff.

Stop 2 - Troop Row

Construction of Troop Row began in 1889 at the east end with Building 56. All of the buildings are double barracks except Building 60, in the center, which is a triple barracks. The average cost of these buildings was $26,000. The Audie Murphy Barracks Complex opened in 1998, replacing the use of the barracks. These barracks are being converted to office space this year. The Army in Atlanta Museum is located in Building 56.

Stop 3 - Post Chapel Building

The chapel was built between 1886 and 1889 as the post guardhouse. During the Spanish-American War, this building served as a place of confinement for 16 prisoners of war. In 1921, pews, 11 stained-glass windows and four stained-glass transoms were added to the structure when it was converted into a chapel.

Stop 4 - Hospital Building

The original post hospital, General Hospital No. 6, was built between 1886 and 1889 at a cost of $11,414. During World War I, the hospital was so important that the senior ranking medical officer commanded the post. Between August 1917 and December 1918, more than 10,000 Soldiers were admitted. During both world wars, many of the surrounding building, including Troop Row, were used as hospital wards. In 1977, the hospital became a clinic and the majority of the building was converted to administrative space. In January 1998, the Lawrence Joel United States Army Health and Dental Clinic was dedicated and opened in Building 125.

Stop 5 - Public Safety Buildings 100, 101 and 102

Construction was completed on Buildings 100, 101 and 102 in 1898, 1893 and 1889, respectively. The first two were storehouses for the commissary and the quartermaster, while Building 102 was the post bakery. The bakery contained three rooms and two ovens to bake bread. At one time, tokens were used, evidently as a means of ration control. These small tokens were redeemable for one loaf of bread. Today, these buildings are used by the Office of Public Safety, which houses the Provost Marshal and his staff.

Stop 6 - Chapel Center Building

Construction was complete on this facility in 1893 at a reported cost of $13,000. The main floor provided rooms for the officer and sergeant of the guard, the noncommissioned officers of the guard force and the members of the guard itself. Space was also provided for a prison room, with two cages for prisoners, six single cells for garrison prisoners and water closets for both the prisoners and the guards. This one-story brick building was the guardhouse and the post prison. In 1949, it was converted to the Central Telephone Exchange for the post. Today, it houses the post chaplain and staff.

Stop 7 - Print Plant

This building was built in 1918 as the post firehouse. It had a capacity of one truck and seven beds. The brickwork covering up the old vehicle entrance in the front can still be seen under the small portico. In 1941, it was converted into the post office and used in that capacity until December 2002.

Stop 8 - Recreation Center Building

Built in 1918 by the Red Cross as a convalescent center for hospital patients, this building was built in the shape of a Maltese cross. In 1919, the building was taken over by the Army and converted into a service club. Today, it is the oldest service club in the Army that is still in use and operating from its original structure.

Stop 9 - Pershing Hall (Building 16)

The original and present-day bachelor officers' quarters was completed in 1904. This facility was originally given the number 16 to incorporate the structure with the numbering system for the 19 sets of quarters on Staff Row, numbered 1 through 20, which is the reason why there is no number 16 on Staff Row. This building was named in honor of General of the Armies of the United States John "Blackjack" Pershing. During his career, Pershing served as the commander-in-chief of the American Expeditionary Forces in World War I and later as the Army chief of staff.

Stop 10 - Van Horn Hall Building

Completed in 1889 as the original post headquarters, this two-story structure contained office space for the commander, adjutant, sergeant major, clerks, library, mail and court martial room. In 1891, the first rental of a telephone line to Atlanta for $12.50 a month was authorized. In 1893, $17 was approved for material and labor to install electric bells and connections in the building to facilitate communication and the transaction of business in the headquarters. Thus, the first known "intercom" system was installed on post. This building was named in honor of Brig. Gen. Robert O. Van Horn, who served as post commander from January 1934 to August 1940. This six-and-a-half-year period is the longest post commander's tour in the installation's history. In 1957, the building became office space for the Staff Judge Advocate.

Stop 11 - Staff Row

Staff Row consists of 19 officer quarters, four single-family residences and 15 duplexes. These quarters were built from 1891 to 1910 at an average cost of $15,000. The original concept for Staff Row was to build homes for the officers of an artillery regiment with 10 batteries. At full strength, such a unit would be authorized a colonel, a lieutenant colonel, three majors, 10 captains, 20 first lieutenants and 10 second lieutenants. The final home built on Staff Row in 1910 is currently the residence of the post commander. The small lot required that Quarters 18 also be a single-family unit.

Stop 12 - Hedekin Field

Staff Row faces the post parade ground, Hedekin Field. Originally a polo field, it is named in honor of Capt. David Drew Hedekin, an avid polo player who commanded Headquarters Company here from 1936 through 1938. Hedekin was fatally injured while playing in a polo tournament at Fort Oglethorpe, Georgia, July 17, 1938. He died there July 20, 1938. A monument to Capt. Hedekin is located on the edge of the parade field across from Quarters 12. Today, Hedekin Field is the site of colorful parades, retirement ceremonies and other special celebrations.

Stop 13 - Quarters 10

Quarters 10 is the centerpiece of Staff Row. Originally known as the Commandant's Quarters, it is home to the commanding general of U.S. Army Forces Command. Completed in 1892, the three-story home has 12-foot-high ceilings on the first floor, 11-foot-high ceilings on the second, and semicircular front windows in the turret. In 1925, Gen. Douglas MacArthur was assigned to Fort McPherson as post commander. Since his wife refused to live in the quarters, they rented an apartment downtown near the Fox Theater. The MacArthurs left after having spent 89 days at Fort McPherson, when he was reassigned to Baltimore, Md. A sleeping porch was added to the back of the quarters in 1935 for President Franklin D. Roosevelt's visits while he was en route to Warm Springs, Georgia.

Final Note -

For a short time, German prisoners of war were held on Troop Row. In June 1917, they constructed the war prison barracks located just west of the post between Campbellton Road and Venetian Drive. By June 1919, 1,346 prisoners were interned at Fort McPherson. Many homes located west of the post were later built on the cement slab foundations left behind after the prison barracks were torn down in late 1919.

The oldest structure still in use at Fort McPherson is located on Miller Drive. Quarters 532 was built in 1887 at a cost of $2,470. The single-family dwelling has 1,843 square feet of space. It was originally the residence of the civilian post engineer, a plumber, who was in charge of the operation of the water pump station. Chief Warrant Officer Ulie H. Jeffers, chief field clerk, lived in these quarters from 1923 through 1950. This period of 27 years probably established a record for the continuous occupancy of a set of Army quarters by one individual. Today, this residence serves as officers' quarters.

HISTORY OF FORT GILLEM

HISTORY OF FORT GILLEM

The name was selected in memory of Lieutenant General Alvan C. Gillem, Jr., who began his career as a private at Fort McPherson in 1910 and retired 40 years later as commanding general of Third U.S. Army, now headquartered at Fort McPherson.

Fort Gillem is a 1,500-acre complex in Forest Park, Georgia. It has contributed more than five decades of service to America by working side by side with the surrounding Clayton County communities. This relationship began in 1941 when the Atlanta General Depot, located in the Candler Warehouse in southwest Atlanta, moved to what is now Fort Gillem.

Construction at the present day site began in the Spring of 1941 and the depot was officially activated on Nov. 1, 1941. At the time of the activation, roads were still being paved, railroad tracks were being laid and 12 of 19 planned warehouses had been completed.

The depot, a sub-command of the Army Materiel Command, was thrown into full activity when the United States entered World War II Dec. 7, 1941. Several hundred Soldiers from Forts McPherson and Benning were rushed to the site to guard the five technical supply sections (chemical, engineer, medical, quartermaster and signal) that were considered potential targets of German sabotage.

The depot played a significant role during the war by supplying much-needed equipment to troops overseas. In addition to its supply mission, an ordnance automotive school was established. More than 71,000 auto technicians had graduated from the school when it was discontinued in 1956. At the peak of the war, more than 10,000 civilians were employed at the depot.

At the conclusion of World War II, the depot's workload did not diminish. The quartermaster coffee roasting plant set up shop. At its peak, the plant could grind 50,000 pounds of "Java" per day: enough to supply 625,000 Soldiers. The roasting plant discontinued its service in 1956. Additionally, in 1948 the depot began serving as a pilot installation for a post-war depot system within the Third U.S. Army area. The focus was on general distribution of logistical supplies and services.

A transportation supply section was established in 1956 to provide field maintenance and backup support and supplies to Army aircraft in the Third U.S. Army area. Following the assignment of this mission, Morris Army Airfield was dedicated in 1959 in honor of 1st Lt. John O. Morris, Jr., an Army pilot killed in a helicopter crash at Thule Air Base, Greenland, in 1955. The $1 million facility, with a 3,000-foot paved runway and aircraft maintenance hangar, was used by the Signal Field Maintenance Mission (Avionics). The airfield was officially closed in the early 1970s. The hangar was demolished in 2002.

The post was renamed the Atlanta Army Depot in 1962 when it was transferred from the Quartermaster Corps to the U.S. Army Supply and Maintenance Command, a major subordinate command of the U.S. Army Materiel Command.

In the wake of the Vietnam War, the depot system was reorganized and deactivated from the Army Materiel Command into a sub-installation of Fort McPherson. On June 28, 1974, the Atlanta Army Depot became known as Fort Gillem. The post was named in memory of Lt. Gen. Alvan C. Gillem, Jr., who began his career in 1910 at Fort McPherson and retired at the same post 40 years later as commander of Third U.S. Army.

Today, the post is one of the largest employers in Clayton County. It is home to 89 organizations, including First U.S. Army, Second Recruiting Brigade, the Army and Air Force Exchange Service Atlanta Distribution Center, Atlanta Military Entrance Processing Station, 3d MP Group, Equipment Concentration Site #43, numerous elements of the 81st RSC, the Army's only criminal forensic lab, the 52d Ordnance Group, FEMA's Territory Logistics Center - East and a 1,600-man reserve component training center. Historic Fort Gillem's expansion and growth continue to be a part of its future with the 52nd Ordnance Group headquarters building, which is approximately 65 percent complete; and the groundbreaking for the criminal forensic lab, which is approximately 30 percent complete.

Fort Gillem grew from the Atlanta Army Depot.

RECREATION

Fort McPherson and Fort Gillem employees and their families work hard to make these installations the successes they are. And when it's time to relax, there are many recreational activities available to them.

...And Off Post

As a thriving city, there are countless places to visit and activities to keep you busy, no matter what your interests. Atlanta has an abundance of historical sites, parks and a botanical garden for getting closer to nature, government buildings to explore and more. Atlantans love their sports, and have many to choose from. Atlanta has many professional sports teams, including Braves baseball, Falcons football, Thrashers hockey, Hawks basketball, The Beat women's soccer and The Silverbacks men's soccer. The city hosted the 1996 Summer Olympics and, in 2000, the National Football League Super Bowl and the Major League Baseball All-Star Game. In 2003 it hosted the Women's Final Four basketball competition and the NBA All-Star Game. In addition, local road races and other sporting events are frequently scheduled.

Following is a list of a few of the many places to visit in the Atlanta area:

Atlanta Botanical Garden

Featuring two-and-a-half acres of home demonstration gardens and self-guided tours of woodlands, herb, vegetable and Japanese gardens, the Atlanta Botanical Garden is located in Piedmont Park on Piedmont Road. It is open Tuesday through Sunday, and is open on Monday holidays (such as Labor Day and Memorial Day). From April through September, the hours are 9 a.m. to 7 p.m.; from October through March, the hours are from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. For more information, call 404-876-5859 or visit the Web site at www.atlantabotanicalgarden.org.

Atlanta Cyclorama and Civil War Museum

The Cyclorama is a multi-media dramatization of a 100-year-old cylindrical oil painting depicting the Battle of Atlanta of 1864. The exhibit is housed in a museum containing artifacts relating to the War Between the States. Also featured is the locomotive, Texas, one of the two used in Andrews' Raid (the great locomotive chase) during the Civil War. The Cyclorama is located at 800 Cherokee Ave. S.E. in historic Grant Park next to Zoo Atlanta. It is open daily from 9:30 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. For more information, call 404-658-7625 or visit the Web site at www.webguide.com/cyclorama.html.

Established in 1968 by Coretta Scott King, The King Center is the official, living memorial dedicated to the advancement of the legacy of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., leader of America's greatest nonviolent movement for justice, equality and peace.

More than 650,000 visitors from all over the world are drawn annually to the King Center to pay homage to Dr. King, view unique exhibits illustrating his life and teachings and visit the King Center's Library, Archives, his final resting place, his birth home, gift shop and other facilities.

For more information, call 404-526-8900 or visit the Web site at www.thekingcenter.org.

Oakland Cemetery

This Victorian Cemetery contains graves of prominent Georgians of all races, including Margaret Mitchell, author of "Gone With the Wind." Located at 248 Oakland Avenue S.E., it is open daily from dawn until dusk. For more information, call 404-688-2107 or visit the Web site at <http://oaklandcemetery.com/>.

Reynolds Nature Preserve

The preserve consists of 130 acres of undisturbed woodland, four miles of nature trails, picnic areas and five ponds. One pond is open for fishing on the weekends. The nature center is open Monday through Friday from 8:30 until 5:30 p.m. and the first Saturday of each month from 9 a.m. until 1 p.m. The grounds are open daily from 8:30 a.m. until dusk. The preserve is located at 5665 Reynolds Road in Morrow. Admission is free. For more information, call 770-603-4188 or visit the Web site at <http://web.co.clayton.ga.us/reynolds/about.html>.

Rhodes Hall

Amos Giles Rhodes' 1903 mansion reflects the architecture and styles of turn-of-the-century Atlanta. Located at 1516 Peachtree Street N.W., behind-the-scenes tours are given the first Friday and Sunday of each month at 1 and 2 p.m. For more information, call 404-885-7800 or visit the Web site at <http://www.georgiatruster.org/rhodes.html>.

Southern Museum of Civil War and Locomotive History

This museum, formerly known as the Big Shanty Museum and the Kennesaw Civil War Museum, is an information-packed excursion into area Civil War history and one event in particular The Great Locomotive Chase. The museum tells the story of The General, The Texas and the men that rode each locomotive into history in 1862. The museum introduces each man who had a role in the escape, including all the Union spies (misguided boys from Ohio and Kentucky) and gives an overview of the situation before the chase.

This museum features the General, one of the two locomotives used in the Civil War "Great Locomotive Chase." (The other is located in the Atlanta Cyclorama). Located in Kennesaw at 2829 Cherokee St. off U.S. 41, the museum is open Monday through Saturday from 9:30 a.m. until 5:30 p.m. and Sunday from noon until 5:30 p.m. For more information, call 770-427-2117 or visit the Web site at www.southernmuseum.org/.

Stone Mountain Park

Stone Mountain is a 3,200-acre wooded park beneath North America's largest mass of exposed granite.

Carved into the face of the mountain are the images of Jefferson Davis, Stonewall Jackson and Robert E. Lee. The park also includes a railroad, sky lift, antebellum plantation, inn, restaurants, riverboat, antique auto and music museum, 18-hole golf course, carillon, mini-golf course, tennis courts, ice skating rink, bike rentals, 500-site campground, swimming, canoeing and paddleboat rides. A 45-minute laser show is featured on the face of Stone Mountain after dark from spring through mid-fall. The park is located at the Stone Mountain exit off U.S. 78. For more information, call 770-498-5690 or visit the Web site at www.stonemountainpark.com.

Woodruff Arts Center

Atlantans can choose from more than 75 amateur and professional arts organizations and events. The Robert W. Woodruff Arts Center, named in honor of the noted philanthropist and former chief executive officer of the Coca-Cola Company, serves as headquarters of the High Museum of Art, the Atlanta Symphony Orchestra, the Alliance Theatre Company and the Atlanta College of Art. The center is located at 1280 Peachtree Street NE. For more information, call 404-733-4200 or visit the Web site at www.woodruff-arts.org.

Wren's Nest

The historic home of Joel Chandler Harris, author of the "Uncle Remus Tales" is located at 1050 Ralph David Abernathy Boulevard, Atlanta. The site is open Tuesday through Saturday from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. and Sunday from 1 p.m. until 4 p.m. For more information, call 404-753-7735.

Yellow River Game Ranch

The ranch is a unique attraction in the southeast. The concept is to show native animals in natural wooded settings. Deer and other wildlife are free to roam through the woods. Some animals are tame and like to be fed and petted by visitors. Other animals are caged or penned, but are accustomed to visitors and enjoy being fed and observed. Native animals include bear, buffalo, mountain lion, coyote, owls and more. Located east of Stone Mountain at 4525 Highway 78 in Lilburn, the ranch is open daily from 9:30 a.m. until 6 p.m. (the last ticket is sold at 5 p.m.). For more information, call 770-972-6643 or visit the Web site at www.yellowrivergameranch.com.

Zoo Atlanta

Enjoy more than 150 species of animals, including flamingos, sea lions, polar bears, small monkeys, elephants, zebras and one of the most outstanding reptile collections in the country. Zoo Atlanta is open everyday of the year except Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Year's Day. Hours of operation are 9:30 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. The zoo is open until 5:30 p.m. on weekends during Daylight Saving Time. Zoo members may enter the zoo at 9 a.m. on weekends.

For more information, call 404-624-5600 or visit the Web site at www.zooatlanta.org.
